NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Army is rapidly adjusting itself to the new and improved conditions of the country and is beginning to take its place in the social life of the nation. The Tournament held at Croke Park on Sunday, 15th, was a revelation to many of the possibilities of the Army in promoting healthy outdoor entertainments to brighten the lives of our people and the Independent Corps Sports on Wednesday of this week should emphasise this fact. Our bands have become very popular with the people, and are already much in demand for civil functions and entertainments. The Feiseanna and Aerideachta and other Gaelic functions may count upon the whole-hearted support of the army.

The Irish classes recently opened at G.H.Q. have been largely availed of by the officers there. The Ard Rang promises well. No English is used, and the students hope to be in a position to qualify immediately for the proposed new Army decoration for speakers of Irish. Encouraging reports have been received from the other commands and excellent progress is being made in the study of the native language. A convention of Fainnigh and speakers of Irish will be held at G.H.Q. on Thursday, the 2nd August, as announced in another column. In addition to the Coisde in charge of the work two delegates from each command and two from every section of the special services will constitute the meeting.

The announcement a few days ago in the Irish Press that a delegation of Irish Army officers were, at the invitation of the French Government, about to visit France for the purpose of witnessing the French Army manoeuvres must surely appeal to the imagination of anyone conversant, even slightly, with the history of either country.

In the darkest hours of our nation's despair we turned to France—to the hope eternal of the Gael—for help and sympathy. Our Gaelic and Anglo-Irish poets wrote the name of France deep in the hearts of the Gael and wove such a magic around it that our fathers spoke the name of France with almost religious reverence. Who that has listened to one of the old generation speaking of Buonaparte and the French can easily forget the glowing enthusiasm of the features and the wistful expression of the eyes that usually accompanied any reference to the subject. It is no easy matter to touch on this fascinating subject in a brief note.

The Irish officers who are visiting France to-day represent the organised army of a free, resurgent nation, whose destinies are at last in the hands of her own sons, and whose status is recognised by the nations of the earth.

It is worthy of note that the delegation has some Irish speakers and that two of the number bear the historic name of McMahon—a name not unfamiliar to the French nation—a name that shall be associated with the history of that nation while the name of France lasts.

In our last issue we referred to the various names by which Ireland was known. The names by which the provinces are called are equally ancient and interesting. Partholon, who, according to bardic tradition was the first to establish a colony in Ireland after the Deluge, was also the first to divide the country into provinces. This colony was destroyed by a plague. The name of Tallaght, where they were buried, has for centuries enshrined this ancient tradition. It is Tamhleacht (muintir Partholon), i.e., Plague Grave (of Partholon's people).

Subsequent divisions of the country followed on much the same lines. Munster, Leinster, Ulster are merely anglicised forms of the Irish Mumha, Laighean and Uladh, with the English termination "ster" added. Mumha means the largest, and was sub-divided into North, South, East and West Munster. These old divisions are still expressed in the Irish names Thomond (N. Munster), Desmond (S. Munster), Ormond (E. Munster). Keating derives Uladh (Ulster) as from Ollshaith, i.e., great plenty.

Laighean is derived from the Laighean or spear with which the foreign allies of Labhraidh Loingseach were armed when they landed in the province.

Connacht preserves its full Irish form. It is given in our annals as being derived from Conn hneachta or Conn iochta. The former means Conn's Snow and refers to a legend of the contention of two Druids, one of whom named Conn brought a great snow on the province. The second name simply means the race of Conn.

OUR FRONT PAGE PORTRAIT.

Major-General Michael Hogan, G.O.C. Claremorris Command.

The present G.O.C. Claremorris Command became prominent in the Volunteers in South Galway during the year 1919, after having been "on the run" from 1917.

Towards the close of 1919 he went to Cork and was first in the Cork City Volunteers, afterwards joining Tom Barry's Column. About the time of the Truce he became Q.M. of the 1st Western Division.

The raids on Windsor and Chelsea Barracks, London, were organised by him. He was arrested in the English capital shortly afterwards and sentenced to two years' penal servitude, but was released in April, 1922.

He was in charge of the troops in Limerick when the fighting started there last year. After Lynch retreated from Limerick General Hogan landed at Tarbert with an expeditionary force from Kilkee, County Clare, and joined O'Daly at Tralee.

Subsequently he operated all over Kerry and parts of Limerick and North Cork until December last year, when, in the general reorganisation, he was appointed to the position which he fills at the present day.

He is 24 years of age and was born in Kilreechale, Co. Galway.

On June 27th this year he was married to Miss Kathleen Barry of Limerick.

FOUNDER OF AMERICAN NAVY.

Wexford Man's Brilliant Exploits in the War of Independence.

THE year that saw the victory of the Irish troops on the battlefield of Fontenoy, and the last efforts made by the Stuarts to regain the throne of their ancestors, also marks the birth of a County Wexford boy who was destined to exercise much influence on the founding of the great United States of America.

John Barry, the founder of America's naval power, was born at the little hamlet of Tacumshane, Co. Wexford, in the spring of 1745, and at an early age crossed the sea to the American Continent. He settled in Philadelphia, and soon became one of the wealthiest merchants in that part of the country.

When the people of America decided that all men were born equal, taxation without representation should not exist, young John Barry threw himself and his fortune whole-heartedly into the ranks of the Americans. He entered the navy, and was given command of a ship of 16 guns, called the "Lexington."

Fortune favoured the young commander, for we learn that he was not long at sea before he fell in with one of the English men-of-war which were cruising in American waters. A fierce and stubborn engagement took place between the two ships, and eventually the skill and bravery which Barry exhibited prevailed and the Englishman struck his colours.

This was the first ship captured during the War of Independence, and naturally the Wexford Sea-captain was greatly honoured by the young Government. A larger vessel, the "Raleigh," which carried 32 guns, was entrusted to his care. Now comes one of the most celebrated actions in the annals of naval warfare.

In May, 1778, news reached Barry that four ships, laden with ammunition and supplies for the English army, were lying at the mouth of the Delaware River. Barry conceived the bold plan of destroying those ships, and set forth with just four small rowboats, which contained about 27 men.

In the dead of night the intrepid little band stole down the river and, when daylight broke, the four rowboats were within a few yards of the provision ships. A man-of-war had arrived the previous evening, and thus Barry found himself confronted by an unexpected foe. Nothing daunted, however, he gives the signal to his followers, and quickly they pulled up alongside the warship.

Before those on board could realise what was happening, the American seamen, led by Barry, were clambering over the bulwarks. Cutlasses were quickly drawn, and a hand-to-hand encounter took place. Up and down the decks swayed the fighting men, until after a bloody tussle, the little band of boarders succeeded in driving the crew into the hold.

John Barry was now master of the situation. The four merchant ships were sunk, and the triumphant sailor took the captured warship to the headquarters of the American squadron.

Sank Rather
Surrender.

Superior ships were now sent out by the British to deal with the gallant little navy under Barry's control, but for a long time he managed to evade capture or defeat. At last it became apparent to everyone that the task of fighting on sea was a hopeless one. When surrounded by an overwhelming force Barry was called upon to surrender, he took the course of sinking before giving up his ship.

After a series of hairbreadth escapes Barry eventually landed on the American coast, and soon afterwards we obtain glimpses of him here and there in the battlefields. He was a personal friend of Washington, and served for a time on his staff.

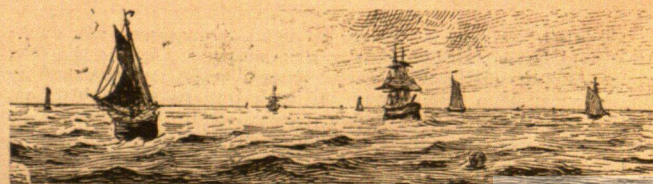

In the year 1782 Barry was given command of the ships which took Lafayette back to France after his valuable services to the American people. On the return voyage Barry captured some English ships of war, and was severely wounded in one engagement.

In Supreme Command of American Navy.

When John Barry sailed triumphantly into American waters with his prizes he was acclaimed as a national hero by the whole American people. From that period Barry was wholly employed in the building of the American navy, and when, in 1794, the United States navy was completely re-organised, the supreme command was, by common consent, given to John Barry, a position he well maintained until his death, which occurred at Philadelphia, in September, 1803.

A handsome memorial to John Barry was erected in Washington in the month of May, 1914. By the way it might be interesting to recall that many ballads descriptive of Barry's prowess as a sea-fighter are still preserved in the United States; one of those is worthy of reproduction:—

"Oh, brave John Barry, whom Washington,
Our god-like leader, dearly loved,
Who a hundred times his valour proved
In a dash, a cruise, a fight;
Never a conflict fair to shun,
With a boarding crew or cannon shocks;
You trimmed your ships, you handled your guns,
You called to your men "Fight on, my sons."
So first of our captains, by your right,
Long as the star-flag lights our land,
And justice rules by every might,
John Barry—Father of our Navy, stand."

THE LANGUAGE OF THE GAEL.

Formation of Army Classes—The First Decoration—Co-operation of Speakers and Students.

Interest in the matters pertaining to the language of the Gael, which was somewhat interfered with by the activities of the life and death struggle in which the nation has been engaged, has been for some time actively manifesting itself in the ranks of the Army and is already taking definite shape.

Since the publication in the last issue of "An t-Oglách" of the Army's activities in this respect numerous inquiries concerning it have been received at G.H.Q. Correspondents will, of course, understand that it is impossible at present to deal with all communications received on the subject. They will be dealt with in a general way from time to time in the columns of "An t-Oglách" as some of our correspondents are apparently labouring under a misapprehension respecting some of the vital points concerned.

It may, perhaps, be well to give a brief synopsis of the situation and some outline of the programme which it is proposed to follow.

The Fainnigh in the Army were not in a position, owing to the general regulation prohibiting the display of decorations on uniforms, to display the Fainne. To make an exception in favour of any particular badge, would require a special G.R.O. on the matter. Relaxation of the general order of the Fainne would create a precedent for the display of other decorations, thus nullifying the original order.

For the purpose of giving the Irish speaker in the Army all the advantages conferred on him in civil life by the Fainne it was decided that to the Irish language was due the tribute of having the first Army decoration to be conferred on the soldiers of the nation—one that stood for the language of the nation.

The form of the decoration has not yet been finally decided on. It is, however, likely to be worked in gold thread and will be displayed prominently on the sleeve of the uniform. This decoration will be indicative of the fact that the wearers are capable of transacting their business, and of discussing ordinary affairs in the national language and are expected to do so when possible.

It must be clearly understood that the G.R.O. as to non-army decorations on the uniform still holds. Nor shall any soldier of the Army be permitted to wear the proposed Irish decoration until he satisfies examiners appointed for the purpose that his knowledge of the language reaches the necessary standard. Even soldiers who in civil life are entitled to wear the Fainne must satisfy the examiners in this respect before they are permitted to wear the Army decoration.

When this decision was communicated to the Fainnigh at G.H.Q. they at once took steps to have the proposed scheme brought into operation with as little delay as possible. For this purpose, and to deal generally with the question of Irish in the Army, a convention of well-known Gaedhilgeoiri will assemble at G.H.Q. on Thursday, 2nd of August, at 3 p.m. The Q.M.G., the A.G. and other prominent Army officers who have all given life-long service to the language cause will be present on the occasion.

The details of the working of the new scheme will be discussed and decided on and arrangements made for holding the first examination for the language decoration. Two representatives are invited from the various Commands and two from each of the special services.

Classes for the study of the Irish language will be subsequently established wherever possible. The classes will work on a graduated scheme with this Army decoration as its final objective.

In the meantime the classes already existing should continue on their own lines until the Ard Coisde is in a position to furnish the new programme. Where it is possible to set a class going now steps should be taken to do so forthwith.

Correspondents will understand that the Coisde is not yet in a position to afford any assistance in establishing classes or supplying teachers. They count, however, on the active co-operation of all Gaelic speakers and students in their efforts to place the language in a worthy position in the army of the nation.

Speakers of Irish who consider that their knowledge of the language entitles them to wear the new decoration should notify the Coisde of their intention to apply for it.

Communications on the subject should be addressed to An Leas Chaptain, Sean O Conchubhar, who is acting as Sec. pro tem.

ARMY TOURNEY AT CROKE PARK.

Thoroughly Enjoyable Day's Sport in Aid of the Wounded Soldiers.

By "OSCAR."

The rain depressed us a little at first. The beautifully-balanced massed bands cheered us and we visualised what a brilliant opening it would have been in the sunshine of the previous week. Then the rain got heavier as the hurlers filed in—Cork Command in white and the Limerick hurlers in blue—a pleasing contrast. They had a great reception from a rapidly growing crowd.

Fine Hurling under Difficulties.

Five minutes was sufficient to convince me of the merits of both teams. There was not an unfinished hurler in the bunch; they swung their ash, blocked and parried with the skill which comes only from long and intimate acquaintance. But the rain spoiled it all. The recent fine dry weather made Croke Park pitch hard and fiery. The sudden moisture affected the immediate surface only and left the sod treacherous to a degree. Soon the players were slipping about helplessly; sharp turning, essential in hurling, was impossible and the ball quickly became wet and elusive.

Yet it was an interesting display; the sides were well matched; Burmell's long drives soon won admiration; Col. McGrath's aggressiveness in attack suggested his best days with Clare, and the brothers Lynch in front kept the Cork backs busy. But they were capable backs. Brady kept a rare goal, and before him he had a stalwart pair of polished hurlers in McCarthy and Murphy. Both teams were well served in midfield, but it was Cork's ability in front of the net that won them victory in the end. Here Desmond, Hegarty and Swaine were very capable. They trapped the greasy ball deftly and soon ran into the lead. Keane, on Limerick's left attack, was now playing well and his neat centres were well finished by Lynch. It was any side's game at the half-way.

The rain passed whilst the second half was in progress, and Burmell's great hurling, feeding Lynch brothers repeatedly, helped Limerick to draw level when 40 minutes had gone.

On a drying sod Cork were more effective. They showed greater skill under falling balls and their speedy wings rained long centres into the area.

It was during this period that the Cork forwards were best. Successive shots found the net, and though Limerick rallied near the end and goaled Cork were winners by 6 goals 1 point to 4 goals 1 point at the whistle. Had the ground been dry a game of many thrills was certain, but it is clear that the Southern Commands hold many capable exponents of our great national game.

High-Class and Exciting Football.

In brighter weather the footballers took the field, and the stirring music of the bands, with the soldierly precision of the arrangements, made a memorable impression.

Curragh Command adopted the famous All-White costume of Kildare. Dublin looked a useful, well-trained lot in their saffron jerseys. The pitch improved, the ball dried in the warm atmosphere, and we were treated to an exciting football game of high class.

Dublin had the best of the game at first, attacking with great spirit. They found Kennedy a powerful defender and the score sheet kept low. Paul Doyle of Kildare fame was responsible for giving Dublin the lead, but some very speedy Curragh movements by Fahy & Co. tested Higgins repeatedly. That wiry little man played brilliant football right through and his perfect fielding and long punting kept him always in the picture.

Though Dublin had lost a man early on, for a breach of discipline (Capt. Fitzgerald, Referee, held a strong command of the game), at one period it looked as if they must win. Whelan and McGetterick were playing first-class football, and the crowd—now an immense one—cheered many an exciting passage to the echo.

McIvor, the well-known inter-County man, was largely responsible for a series of speedy Curragh raids. He dominated the game at midfield and repeatedly slipped dangerous balls into the area. It was from one of these that Curragh got the first goal of the game and set the Kildare star in the ascendant. A great free of Kennedy's led up to another lightning raid and once more the Dublin citadel fell.

It was a formidable lead, but Dublin were far from beaten. They attacked with renewed vigour. Doyle screwed many a left legged kick in, always to find Kennedy at home. Some rousing struggles followed round the Curragh goal before it fell to a great shot of Doyle's near the end.

This was the last score, though Dublin were aggressive to the end of a thoroughly enjoyable game. The number of scores were level (4 each), but Curragh were worthy winners by having the odd goal in three. When these teams meet in the Championship most exciting games are certain.

Strenuous Tugs-of-War.

The audience now were treated to some delightful music by the massed bands under Sergeant-Major Devlin's baton.

The D.M.P. and Guinness tug-of-war teams marched round behind the pipe band of the Dublin Command. The sun worried his way out of the clouds and the packed stands looked brilliant with their mixed civilian and military population thoroughly enjoying the sport feast laid out for them. The Civic Guards' tug-of-war team looked a sturdy lot, but they were not as experienced pullers as their lighter opponents from Ballyboden. The civilian victors of the lightweight pull got a great reception. Great steadiness in keeping the strain won them their two clean pulls.

Guinness and D.M.P. are famous exponents with rope and were evenly matched. The first pull was the most exciting I've seen for many years. At one time Guinness had almost won, but the better footwork and great avoirdupois served the Police well and eventually got the Brewery men over the line. In the second pull D.M.P. never gave an inch away, but they had to change four times before they could get their dour, steady opponents across the line.

Altogether it was a great day and a most auspicious opening for the Army Athletic Association. Success is now assured to the Association. Precision of arrangements and punctuality were outstanding features. Comdt. Colgan and his colleagues are capable organisers and a very favourable impression was created.

The Commander-in-Chief was in attendance from beginning to end, presenting the prizes individually and displaying a keen interest in the whole programme. Many prominent members of his Staff occupied front seats and a fair sprinkling of ladies lent colour to the picture.

Congratulations A.A.A.!

CRAYON PORTRAITS FROM THE DONEGAL COMMAND.

GLIMPSES OF THE PAST.

Baile Atha Cliath, the Celtic name for Dublin, was noticed by the Greek Geographer, Ptolemy, about the year 140 A.D.

The second Siege of Limerick began on August 14th, 1691, and lasted until October 3rd.

The Treaty of Limerick consisted of two parts: one civil, the other military, and contained altogether 42 articles.

The chief of the civil articles decreed that the Irish Catholics were to have the same religious liberty as they enjoyed in the days of Charles II.

Sarsfield and 20,000 Irish soldiers sailed for France, and formed the nucleus of the famous Irish Brigade.

Between 1631 and 1745 more than 450,000 Irishmen left their native land and crossed the seas to France, where they entered the French military service.

It is said that the Jacobite war cost England over 7 millions, beside a vast destruction of houses, cattle and other property.

Eoghan Ruadh O'Neill, when sailing for Ireland in 1642, carried the flag of Ireland, a golden harp on a green field, at the maintop of his ship.

The Battle of Benburb, fought on June 5th, 1646, between O'Neill's force and an army of Scottish soldiers under General Monro was won by the swords and pikes of the Irish infantry.

The French invasion of Carrickfergus in 1760 was headed by a sea captain named Thurot whose real name was O'Farrell.

Wolfe Tone founded the Society of United Irishmen in Belfast in October, 1791.

James Napper Tandy was appointed Secretary to the Dublin Society of United Irishmen.

When the Legislative Union between Ireland and England was proposed the whole Orange Society in the North of Ireland petitioned against it.

In December, 1796, a French Fleet entered Bantry Bay, but owing to the weather conditions a landing was found impossible.

A French force under General Humbert landed at Killala in August, 1798, and captured Castlebar. After some weeks' skirmishing they were completely outnumbered by the English under Cornwallis at Ballinamuck.

During the Siege of Derry, in 1689, horseflesh was sold for 1s. 8d. per lb., a dog's head for 2s. 6d., and a favourite dish of the day was a pancake made of starch and tallow.

The Battle of Kinsale, December 3rd, 1602, which ended in the retreat of Aodh O'Neill, marked the end of the great Ulster war of 1598-1602.

Dunboy Castle, which was besieged in June, 1602, marks one of the most heroic combats in the whole history of Ireland. After a desperate resistance the whole garrison, consisting of 143 men, were put to the sword. Carew, who led the assault, says: "So obstinate and resolved a defence had never been seen in this kingdom."

The great Battle of Glenmalure, fought in 1580, saw the complete overthrow of the English garrison under Lord Grey of Wilton.

The Magazine Fort, Phoenix Park, was erected in 1735. It was when he saw this work in progress Swift is reported to have said:—

"Behold a proof of Irish wit. Here Irish sense is seen. When there's nothing left that's worth defence, they build a Magazine."

Trials by Combat were held in the yard of Dublin Castle in 1583.

In 1596 a huge quantity of gunpowder, intended for use against the Irish, was exploded in Dublin and about 400 inhabitants who resided in the neighbourhood of Wood Quay were killed.

A Proclamation was issued in 1623 forbidding all Catholic priests to remain in Ireland.

English Protestants who fled from their own country to avoid persecution were received by the Catholic citizens of Dublin.

The Mayors of Dublin and Drogheda contested the right to lead expeditions against the O'Reilly Clan. It was decided that the former should lead on the outward journey and that the latter should, if necessary, cover the retreat of the army on the homeward march.

In 1553 a great number of young Dublin men were enrolled in a militia regiment, but were soon afterward disbanded, as it was feared that they might use the knowledge of military matters against the English garrison.

At the Siege of Cremona, in 1701, the Irish soldiers fought clad only in their night-shirts.

So that the urgently needed repairs to Mallow railway bridge should not be held up for an indefinite period, soldiers took charge of the Clyde Shipping Company's steamer, "Lizard," which arrived in Cork on Sunday, 15th inst., and the work of unloading the vessel's cargo of girders was pushed forward expeditiously. Our photograph shows men of the Railway Repair, Protection and Maintenance Corps on guard at the ruined structure, the loss of which has been very severely felt by the people of Cork and the South of Ireland generally.

SOME CRAYON IMPRESSIONS

S OF THE SIGNAL CORPS.

ON THE PLAINS OF KILDARE.

On mem'ry's horizon, ere time on my brow
Had furrowed its flight, flecked my hair with its snow,
The hour I recall, with its farewell of sorrow,
To the home of my youth, nestling down by The Curragh.

And the air was athrob with the rhythmical tread,
And the landscape ablaze with the yellow and red
Of the legions of England in column and square,
Arrayed in review on the plains of Kildare.

And the boom of their guns on my lonely heart fell
With a cadence as that of a funeral knell—
'Twas the Usurper's voice; through the power that it gave,
I wandered in exile, an outlaw—a slave.

But, what of the night when 'tis radiant morn?
Is less lustrous the crown, when the cross has been borne?
What of life's tribulations, if but, at its ev'n,
The wayfarer stands at the portals of Heav'n.

What the years of my exile, though buffeted, tossed,
By adversity's tides, when a day dawned at last,
Outweighing that long score of trial and sorrow,
And I stood by that old home of mine on The Curragh.

*And the air was athrob with a rhythmical tread,
For the red risen sun a soft brilliancy shed
On the soldiers of Ireland, in column and square,
Arrayed in review on the plains of Kildare.*

Oh God! what a feast mine old eyes for to greet
And what music was in that unisonant beat—
Oh! that Wolfe Tone, Lord Edward and Emmet were there
With that army of ours on the plains of Kildare.

I have lived life's full span, and I know what has been,
And I know that an epoch is rooted between
The day Britain's proud banner went down, and the morrow
When Ireland's, unchallenged, waved over The Curragh.

BOXING.

For the information of those intending taking part in the forthcoming Army Boxing Championships, the Executive Council again desire to state that any man taking part in a Professional Boxing match since the formation of the Army Athletic Association is ineligible to take part in the Army Boxing Championships.

Members of the Army Athletic Association taking part in Boxing tournaments organised by civilians must have the sanction of the Executive Council before competing.

The Civic Guards' Tug-of-War team is seen in the centre picture, and the bottom left snapshot depicts an incident of the football match.

The gentleman in the bottom right-hand picture is Constable P. J. Bermingham, D.M.P., Superintendent's Office, Rathmines, who was the very effective "Anchor" of the D.M.P. Tug-of-War team. It was only a fortnight previously that Constable Bermingham was busy creating records at Croke Park, and incidentally winning three championships. He broke his own Irish record in the discus-throwing by two feet, and won the championships of Ireland in throwing the 56lb. weight over the bar and between the legs without follow.

HANDBALL ALLEY IN COLLINS BARRACKS.

(To the Editor of "An t-Oglácl.")

Dear Editor—Now that the various competitions are about to start in the National Army, could it be possible to have the ball-alley in the Barracks fixed up properly? It is impossible to practise in, and a few of us are keen on the handball competition. Could you bring this to the notice of the Army Athletic Association, and oblige?—Yours respectfully,

FOOTBALL AND BOXING IN DINGLE.

(From our Kerry Correspondent.)

A highly successful football and boxing tournament was held in Dingle on Wednesday, the 4th inst., the promoters of which, Captain P. Fleming, Lieut. J. T. O'Connor, and Lieut. H. Creaney, deserve much credit for the admirable arrangements.

The football match between "B" Coy., Dingle and "A" Coy., Workhouse, Tralee—both Units of the 17th Infantry Battalion—was a very well contested game. At half time the scores were equal, i.e. 1 point each. The latter half of the game proved very interesting and some exceptionally fine play was witnessed—until the whistle declared "B" Coy., Dingle, winners by 5 points to 3 points.

At the Cinema, in the evening before a full house, a series of Boxing bouts were held. The Star turn of the evening proved to be a four-round exhibition contest between Lieut. O'Connor and Corp. Donoghue. The footwork and sparring of both men was ideal. Previous to this bout Corp. Donoghue issued a challenge to any one in the Kerry Command, to fight at nine stone. Details:—

FIRST CONTEST—A three round contest between Corpl. Jones and Vol. Smith. Jones proved himself the stronger man of the two and was awarded the decision on points.

SECOND CONTEST—Volunteer Doyle and Volunteer Murray met in a three-round contest. The men were well-matched and fought well. Murray was awarded the fight by a small margin of points.

THIRD CONTEST—Corp. Fogarty and Volunteer Burne met in a three-round contest. After a ding-dong battle Fogarty was declared the winner on points.

FOURTH CONTEST—Volunteer Whelan and Volunteer Wilson, in a three-round contest. Both men fought so well in this bout that the Referee was unable to arrive at a decision and ordered another round. Eventually he awarded the fight to Wilson.

FIFTH CONTEST—Sergeant Jones and Volunteer McNeill, three-round exhibition—in which both men displayed some scientific boxing.

SIXTH CONTEST—Volunteer Cosgrave and Volunteer Byrne, in a three-round contest. The victory was awarded to Cosgrave after a gruelling fight.

SEVENTH CONTEST—Corp. Morrissey and Volunteer Hyde, in a three-round contest—Hyde was declared the winner after a clever display.

GARRISON SPORTS IN MACROOM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On Friday afternoon, 6th inst., under the auspices of the 32nd Infantry Battalion, a very enjoyable and successful athletic and sports meeting was held at Headquarters, Macroom Castle. Delightful weather was associated with the function, and quite an interesting card of events was disposed of. An unfortunate feature of the arrangements was that the date fixed for the event, being a holiday, and a very busy one in town, did not conduce to an excessive patronage on the part of the civil population. Indeed shopkeepers, assistants and many others keenly regretted they were unable to avail of the pleasant attractions provided by the garrison amidst the picturesque surroundings of the castle demesne. The various athletic events were well contested, though several prizes fell to 2nd-Lieut. Griffin. At the conclusion of the sports an interesting hurling contest between the 32nd and 10th Infantry Battalions took place. The teams met on a previous occasion, when the match resulted in a draw. On the present occasion, after a splendidly contested match, in which a really efficient and fascinating exposition of the game was given, the issue still remained undecided. The final score was:—

10th Battalion—2 goals 3 points. 32nd Battalion—1 goal 6 points. The proceedings were considerably enlivened by the presence of the bands of the 10th Battalion. This was the first visit of the recently-organised Brass and Reed Band to Macroom, and musical critics praised the excellence of the band under the conductorship of Bandmaster Gargan. Prizes were distributed by Comdt. J. J. Kingston, representing the G.O.C. Details:—

Boys' Race—W. Lynch, 1st; T. Murphy, 2nd. 20 competed.
100 YARDS (Open)—Vol. T. Herlihy, C Coy., 1st; Vol. J. Whelan, B Coy., 2nd. Nine competed.
200 YARDS (Open)—Vol. T. Herlihy, C Coy., 1st; Vol. J. Whelan, B Coy., 2nd. Five competed.
440 YARDS (Open)—Lieut. Griffin, B Coy., 1st; Sergeant O'Keeffe, E Coy., 2nd.

120 YARDS HURDLE RACE—Lieut. A. J. Benfield, Assistant Battalion Adjutant, 1st; 2nd-Lieut. Griffin, 2nd.

SACK RACE—Corp. T. Donovan, G Coy., 1st; Sergt. O'Keeffe, E Coy., 2nd. 12 competed.

THREE MILE CYCLE RACE—Vol. P. Cleary, B Coy., 1st; Vol. L. Byrne, E Coy., 2nd. Eight competed.

HIGH JUMP—2nd Lieut. Griffin, 5 ft. 4 ins., 1st; Vol. M. Hanrahan, 4 ft. 9 ins., 2nd. Six competed.

ONE MILE FLAT.—2nd-Lieut. Griffin, 1st; Vol. Whelan, 2nd. Five competed.

LONG JUMP—2nd Lieut. Griffin, 20 ft. 2 ins., 1st; Sergt.-Major Bentley, B Coy., 19 ft. 1 in., 2nd. Eight competed.

HOP, STEP AND JUMP—2nd Lieut. Griffin, 42 ft. 2 ins., 1st; Sergt.-Major Bentley, 36 ft. 7 ins., 2nd. Eight competed.

ATHLONE COMMAND'S BOXING CHAMPION.

June 5th, 1923.

Sir,—Herewith you will find a snapshot of a man who has an unbeaten record since he joined the Army. We would like to see his photo in your tip-top little paper. Maybe some other Batt. Pet would challenge him for his record (unbeaten). Of course he holds the title of Middle Weight Champion of the Athlone Command along with numerous others.

Hoping you will accede to my wish.

Respectfully yours,

Rescue and Attempted Rescue from Drowning.

Volunteer T. Ryan was saved from drowning in the River Camlin by Sergeant Jack McCormack, the bass drummer of the 23rd Infantry Band in Longford.

Ryan got into difficulties at a place known as the Black Water whilst bathing. The alarm was raised, and Sergeant McCormack, who was partly dressed, jumped in to the rescue.

Volunteer Ryan had disappeared, but the Sergeant dived and succeeded in bringing him to the surface and safely to the bank.

After restoratives had been applied the rescued man was able to proceed to barracks.

Coroner and jurors at the inquest on Lieutenant Cornelius Cunningham, who was drowned whilst bathing in the Liffey at Athgarvan on Sunday, 15th inst., paid tribute to the gallant attempts at rescue by the deceased officer's companion, Lieutenant Maurice Hayes, who nearly lost his own life in his efforts to save his friend.

Readers should write on one side of the paper only. It is possible that some slight delay may occur in answering certain queries owing to the necessity for making inquiries, but all questions will be answered in the earliest possible issue.

ARTILLERY OFFICERS.

Lery (Rathmines).—1. Elementary Mathematics, Middle Grade Intermediate Standard. 2. See Number 1. 3. When vacancies occur in Corps or additional junior officers are required. 4. Notification of exams. will be published in "An t-Oglach" and in G.R.O. 5. Examination usually. Promotion on merit without exam. in special instances. 6. Not yet decided. Members of Regular Army. 7. Not at the moment.

LOSS OF CIVIL POST.

Vol. Hugh W. (Mullingar).—Enquiries are being made regarding the matter raised in your letter. Answer will appear in a subsequent issue.

TRANSFER.

"Rock" (Templemore).—We advise you to consult the Batt. M.O.

Volunteer P.B. (Haulbowline).—Make application for transfer to the particular unit you wish to join.

DISCHARGE.

P.K. (Tralee).—Make application to Griffith Barracks for return of the document, giving full particulars.

"Old Tom Stagger" (Curragh).—If your O/C is willing to grant discharge there should be no difficulty. Place the case before him.

C.B. for N.C.O.

Captain J. M.—(1) No. (2) He is both. The point raised in your first question is treated in General Regulations as to Discipline, Sec. 25.

PENSION.

R.A.D.M. (Roscrea).—No, not necessarily—unless you have been proved fit before one of their Medical Boards.

BANDSMEN.

"Anxious One" (Baldonnel).—Make application to your O/C for transfer to a band unit.

DENTAL MECHANICS.

J.M.M.G. (Curragh).—We would advise you to refer your first question to the Medical Authorities in the Command. The answer to your second question is in the affirmative. You should, however, always state the period served in both units separately.

OFFICERS' BATMEN.

"Lightning" (Cork).—(1) Same rate of pay as an infantry soldier. (2) No definite regulation governing this matter. (3) The uniform is usually the same as worn by infantry men. (4) Regulations in this connection have not yet been issued. (5) We expect that after some time there will be a distinction.

LEAVE AFTER 6 MONTHS' SERVICE.

"Buffalo" (Templemore).—The question of leave is at present subservient to the jurisdiction of your O/C.

A.S.C.

"A Swank" (Limerick).—(1) Yes, provided he has appeared in orders. (2) We believe that the formation of a unit of the kind you mention is under consideration.

NOT A SLACKER.

"Sago" (Sligo).—For disciplinary reasons "slacks" are not permitted to be worn on parade. The matter of wearing them on other occasions is subject to your O/C's orders.

ENGINE FITTER.

"Renfrew" (Cork).—It is hardly possible that you will be granted as apprenticeship your period of service in the Army. Would you not apply for transfer to some corps in the Army in which your experience would be of use?

DAIL LOAN OF 1920.

"Saidiur" (Dublin).—The answer to your first question is in the affirmative. (2) Yes. (3) We think so.

HEARING AFFECTED.

Michael McM. (Dublin).—We would advise you, as soon as practicable, to make application to the Government Pensions Committee. Write us again on the matter.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE.

"Joe Hare" (Mountjoy).—Your letter is not sufficiently clear. We would be glad to know the particular "arrangements" you refer to. With reference to your friend's question we have to state that the point you want answered is not apparent. Write again in a more comprehensive way.

LEAVE AND TRAVELLING VOUCHERS.

"It's not fair" (Dublin).—We advise you to make special representations to your O/C and let us know the result.

UNEMPLOYED.

P.K. (Jervis Street).—You should give us full particulars as to your length of service, qualifications, and previous occupation. State also the character given you on discharge. Without these particulars we can hardly hope to help you.

FALSE TEETH.

S.O.S. (Athlone).—We would advise you to take the matter up again with your M.O. The matter may have slipped his memory. Write us again for advice if you fail in this connection.

SPECIAL LEAVE.

"Gunner" (Dun Laoghaire).—We are giving your case attention.

LIKES THE O.T.C.

Lieut. G. M.—This is a question you should ask of the officer i/c O.T.C. The matter, we think, would be subservient to his jurisdiction.

MEDICALLY UNFIT.

Private M.R.—You should supply full details as to the nature of the accident and the manner in which it occurred, together with particulars of your discharge, to the Adjutant General's Department, G.H.Q., Parkgate, Dublin.

MATERNITY BENEFIT.

"Kerryman."—We are not quite clear as to the meaning of your letter. You are entitled to the usual Dependants' Allowance for each child.

ELIGIBILITY FOR PENSIONS.

Private John F.—It will not be possible to arrive at a decision in your case until the Pensions Board functions, which will be soon. The Pensions Bill, under the provisions of which allowance is made for the setting up of this Board, has passed through the Oireachtas, as announced in our last issue.

DEPENDANTS' ALLOWANCE.

All letters relating to Dependants' Allowance are forwarded direct to the Dependants' Allowance Branch, Army Pay Corps, Portobello Barracks, Dublin.

Only in exceptional cases are such letters replied to in these columns.

"Pharos" (Templemore).—You are entitled to Dependants' Allowance, but not to Ration Allowance.

Seosamh O Ceannaigh (Oriell House).—This case is held up owing to an irregularity in the attestation claim. We are assured that the matter will be cleared in a week.

"Distracted Dependant" (Strabane).—This claim is at present being investigated. If the investigation proves satisfactory the Dependants' Allowance will be paid from the date of attestation.

"Rover" (Drumshambo).—A form has been sent to you at Drumshambo for completion. A form has also been sent to your father for particulars regarding your brother.

Volunteer Patrick Bell.—Investigations are still in progress in this case the result of which may alter the assessment.

Volunteer C. Cleary.—Your mother is entitled to 28s. per week in respect of her husband, and extra for every child under 14 years of age. You and your brother are entitled to partial Dependants' Allowance on investigation according to scale.

James Murray.—No Allowance can be claimed in respect of the younger brother and sister in this case.

Daniel Murphy (Kinsale).—Payments in this case were held up owing to non-receipt of certificate. This has now been received and the balance due is being cleared up by fortnightly payments of £10 each.

Mrs. Annie Hanlon.—This was assessed at seven shillings a week, but matter has been sent for re-investigation.

"Old Kerry" (Ponsonby Barracks, Curragh).—A cheque for £9 16s. was despatched to your mother on 12th July, clearing the account to the 7th inst.

"Squib" (Curragh).—This claim was passed for payment at seven shillings per week. The total paid up to the 7th July was £12. The balance (£5 16s.), plus accruing amounts, will be cleared with the next payment on the 21st inst.

"Hard Hit" (Kerry).—The assessment in this case was seven shillings per week. The soldier's liability to contribute at least one-third of total Army remuneration (roughly 8s.) is taken into consideration when the assessment is being made. The amount contributed to the home prior to enlistment in this case is estimated at thirty shillings, of which fifteen was cost of board.

Old Volunteer (Killarney).—Your grievance probably will have been remedied before this issue of "An t-Oglácl" reaches you.

RATION ALLOWANCE.

"Courier" (Dublin).—(1) If your O/C will not certify that you are entitled to Ration and Outdoor Allowance the Pay Officer cannot do anything. (2) No.

"Rambler" (Dublin Castle).—Two shillings per day.

S.O.B.—Ration Allowance at 2/- per day has now been sanctioned for married men in receipt of Dependants' Allowance.

BUGLERS

"Bugler" (Co. Cork).—There is no extra rate of pay for buglers. Please state in which number of this paper you saw the statement you mention. (2) See paragraph headed "Essential Detail Omitted."

GRADE PAY.

"Sunshine" (Sligo).—Grade Pay applies only from the date on which you were certified proficient. (2) Apply to Dependants' Allowance Branch, Portobello Barracks, for a form to fill up.

"Waxy" (Donegal).—You are entitled to Grade Pay from the date of employment if certified proficient by your O/C.

"Inquisitive" (Ballyshannon).—There is no authority for payment of Grade Pay in these cases.

BACK PAY.

"Kilmichael" (Cork).—(1) Your claim is being investigated and you will be duly notified of the result. (2) No; under the new Army arrangements the question of ranks of N.C.O.'s is a matter which comes under the jurisdiction of the G.O.C. We would advise you to speak on the matter to the officer who awarded you the rank in question.

"Tommy" (Curragh).—Unless your rank is certified by the Adjutant-General your claim cannot be entertained.

"Worried" (Curragh).—We have forwarded your letter to the proper quarter.

PROFICIENCY PAY.

"Sic" (Portobello).—The Pay Officer is carrying out instructions received from the Chief Pay Officer.

BARRACK QUARTERMASTER.

"Lill."—The title of Barrack Quartermaster is doubtful in your case. If your O/C certifies that you are proficient in clerical work on the staff of the Battalion Quartermaster the two shillings grade might apply.

"CHIPS" AFLOAT.

"Early Birds in the West."—There are no ships' carpenters in the Coastal Patrol Services.

ORDERLY ROOM SERGEANT.

E.J.K.—This is a question of the correct rank for the position of Orderly Room Sergeant. He is entitled to pay for the rank officially laid down in Army Organisation.

WIRELESS.

"Dot Dash" (Kilkenny).—So far, Signal Corps Rates of pay have only been arranged in the case of fully qualified Wireless Operators and Wireless Mechanics. The rate being:—

1st Class Operator or Mechanic	6/- per day
2nd Class " "	5/- " "
Sergeant " "	9/- " "

Rates of pay for all branches of signalling are under consideration. The qualifications for a first class wireless operator are:—85 per cent in Manipulation and Theoretical Examinations; the latter being both oral and written. N.C.O.'s transferring to the Signal Corps are in the first instance accepted as privates, subsequent promotions depending on merit.

Vol. C. L. Bradley (Meerwald).—There are no vacancies in the Wireless Section except for fully qualified operators or mechanics. The other matter referred to in your letter is being dealt with.
